

VOTE MICHAEL E. JOHNSON

FEA HUMAN CIVIL-RIGHTS COORDINATOR

As a DoDEA teacher, one thing I have learned is that the worst act of a leader is to walk into a new setting and start making changes without taking the time to get to know the people and practices that the leader intends to change. The motivation to make one's mark or build a legacy is not evidence of true leadership; rather, it is evidence of self-centeredness and limited vision.

A LEADER'S VISION SHOULD INCLUDE YOU

True leaders do not build monuments to themselves. They are motivated by helping others reach their full potential. When barriers stand in the way, leaders dig trenches and pull their people through them. They erect ladders to take their people over them. They build bridges to connect their people to one another so that a diversity of ideas and creativity benefit everyone.

LEADERS DIG TRENCHES, ERECT LADDERS & BUILD BRIDGES

A vote for Michael E. Johnson is a informed and active decision to:

- ENSURE the barriers that resist developing the HCRC program are broken.
- BUILD awareness of human civil-rights issues.
- PROMOTE professional development that BUILDS leadership capacity.
- UNITE FEA by bringing all underrepresented groups to the table.
- STRENGTHEN FEA by strengthening its ethnic-minority population.
